[From the Petersburg Appeal, 22d.] FRIENDS IN RICHMOND. - Our people should not forget that in the recent trouble and persecution of their officers of election they bave found a number of friends-of fast and true friends-in Richmond. The action of the lawyers of that city who tendered their services gratuitously was gracefully and generously done, and our people are grateful for it. There have also been other friends, among whom may be mentioned Mr. W. K. Martin, who has generously offered to go bail for all the indicted judges, and who has made himself very active in their behalf. Such kindness cannot fail to be appreciated at its full worth. We owe a debt of thanks no less to General Peyton Wise, whose exertions in behalf of the judges have been very valuable. We append a letter of that gentleman to Captain William E. Hinton, from which the nature and extent of his interest in the cause can be appreciated: 827 Broad street. RICHWOND, VA., October 17, 1874.

Colonel W. Hinkon, Jr., Petersburg, Va. : Dear Hinton,-Your telegram about furnishing bonds for the Petersburg judges of election was received this morning a little after 12 o'clock. I immediately took steps to provide as good bail as could possibly be required. Ten or twelve prominent citizens agreed to offer bail not only without hesitation, but with eagerness. I could have gotten a thousand of the best names in town if only time had been allowed me to do so. Call on us always when you want help. Our hearts are with you, and we only need to know how our hands can assist in order to their being stretched out gladly. PEYTON WISE. Your friend,
